35 new TOPIX constituents

Where will index money go? Top 10 by potential buying scale

Announced October 7, 2026.
New inclusion October 30.
The focus is on companies previously outside TOPIX: 23 Standard Market companies + 12 Growth Market companies.

Ranking basis

The ranking uses estimated free-float market capitalization as of August as a proxy for considering the absolute amount of index-tracking buying. It does not rank expected share-price gains.

01 | Complete list of 35 additions

A path into TOPIX now opens to Standard and Growth.

All 35 companies are currently outside TOPIX. Inclusion conditions include liquidity criteria such as an annual trading-value turnover ratio of at least 0.2, and a free-float market-cap criterion.

02 | Top 10 by buying-demand scale

A larger free-float market cap tends to mean a larger TOPIX weight and more absolute index buying, other things equal.

#	Code / Company	Free float* (JPY 100m)	Focus
1	2702 McDonald’s Holdings Japan	6,917	S | Among the largest absolute buying demand
2	6890 Ferrotec Holdings	4,378	S | Second-largest estimated free-float market cap in this table
3	7716 Nakanishi	1,758	A | Large scale; Standard Market
4	2782 Seria	1,755	A | Large scale; high name recognition
5	6960 Fukuda Denshi	1,565	A | Also watch the ratio to trading activity
6	4966 C. Uyemura & Co.	1,532	A | Among the largest free floats
7	4816 Toei Animation	1,520	A | Index buying + popular theme
8	9436 Okinawa Cellular Telephone	1,497	A | Stable earnings model
9	581A GO	1,459	A | Among the Growth leaders
10	2160 GNI Group	1,373	A | Among the Growth leaders

* QUICK estimates based on August averages; these do not equal actual index weights or buying demand.
Two standouts: McDonald’s Holdings Japan is about JPY 691.7bn and Ferrotec Holdings about JPY 437.8bn. Together they represent an estimated 24% of the 35-company total of about JPY 4.66tn. These two are the initial focus in absolute amounts.

03 | Where should you focus?

For index buying alone

Prioritize 2702 McDonald’s Holdings Japan and 6890 Ferrotec Holdings. Their outstanding free-float market caps make large absolute passive inflows more likely.

For share-price impact

The key is expected buying divided by usual trading value, rather than buying amount alone. Low-liquidity stocks may react strongly even to smaller buying amounts.

Event dates

TOPIX inclusion is October 30. Index-tracking portfolios need to adjust at the previous business day’s close, so supply and demand may particularly concentrate at the October 29 close.

Conclusion

New inclusion does not mean buy everything. Combine: ① free-float market cap; ② average daily trading value; ③ price gains already reflecting the event; ④ underlying business value.
Next examine “buying-impact days”: rank the 35 by how many days of normal trading value the TOPIX buying equals, to get closer to a true supply-demand ranking.
